GENRE

DRAMA

SYNOPSIS i.

Simonne, an international DJ in her 30's, is from very humble beginnings, but has lived, travelled and partied enough for five lifetimes over. After dropping away from big events, to get her habits under wraps, she decides to step back into the major festival scene in Miami for the first time in a few years. Her only friend, and Manager, Adam, continues to support her, while she talks about hanging it all up for good, and starting a quiet, private life. But, Adam feels like playing the stage is what she was born to do.

After a hiatus, Simonne travels to Miami to headline the Winter Festival. Everything about going back to big festivals reminds her of her dead girlfriend, Lynn, who shared her crazy journey to stardom, and along the way becoming jealous and out of control until finally she took her own life, or did she?

SYNOPSIS ii.

Heather, a journalist, and Lynn's younger sister, pops by to say hi, which stirs up more memories, both good and bad. Heather always had a childhood crush on Simonne. While she's hanging around, Heather stumbles across an importing drug ring right inside the festival involving one of its promoters, Hershey, who warns her that she better tread lightly.

Glimpses of the past coincide with the present while Simonne wrestles with her demons, including a disturbing secret that may finally confront her, she's faced with a life decision that will ultimately affect her future.

While playing one night at the festival, Simonne thinks she sees Lynn standing in the crowd.

SYNOPSIS ii.

As exciting and glamorous as her life seems to her fans, Simonne confides in Adam, constantly zig zagging her direction within the music industry, wishing for something more, and perhaps Heather can help her attain it, but she can't quite shake her indecisions about performing.

Just when Simonne thinks she's done with the whole thing, she steps up on stage for one final exhilarating performance.
